GIVING OF STALWARTNESS

REAPS VICTORY,

THE GIVING OF UNDERSTANDING PROCURES FRIENDSHIP, AND THE GIVING OF PATRONAGE EARNS RESPECT. Our gifts are given without expectation of reward and without anticipation of return. Yet, because our gifts are of ourselves, we discover intangible reward, incalculable return. We find and reflect fulfillment as we grow within. We develop personality; we build character; we achieve humility. Chancellors learn that giving unreservedly engenders priceless intangibles, FOR OPEN HANDS THAT GIVE GATHER.

Giving Enthusiasm Secures Identity

Hands that give enthusiasm in ACTIVITIES gather identity. Into each activity, Chancellors unreservedly poured interest and participation, blended with the special Chancellor spirit. Wythe activities received enthusiastic support as Chancellors read lines for dramatic productions, "dogged" at sock-hops, purchased publications, and joined in the cheers at pep rallies. In levis and sweatshirts, they prepared for the Junior-Senior; in long formals and white coats, they attended it.
Bonds were strengthened and goals established.
By making
George Wythe a part of themselves, they made themselves a part of George Wythe. Each Chancellor assumed a role and the responsibility of playing it well. Each found a place and gained an identity.

Determined to earn most of the Junior-Senior prom money in the Sophomore year, class members unite in shoe shine effort.

Enthusiastic Key Clubbers, appropriately attired, give a rousing cheer in Talent Show as they mimic Wythe cheerleaders.

Diverse Participation Arouses Chancellors

With individual spirits captured by slogans from "Supercalifragilisticexpealidocious" to "S.S.S.", with the help of Cadet parades, SCA school spirit and clean-up contests, and with outright challenges, classes competed with each other for recognition and superiority.

Active Chancellors, grouped by classes and organizations, yet individualized by glowing personalities, freely poured forth their abundant energies to build, improve, and perfect the immeasurable vitality of Wythe student life. Coupling the most outstanding ability with the liveliest originality, the GAA exhibited the fine student showmanship at the annual Talent Show. Even Uncle Sam recognized the abilities of selected performers as the Army Reserve spotlighted the highlights of the show on local television. Epitomizing unrelenting Chancellor enthusiasm, confident cheerleaders filled the gym with loud cheers for the Bulldog basketeers, as aspiring candidates echoed their cheers in the spring tryouts.

Students show enthusiasm as Jerry Ouska, Kent Greenway, David Perkinson campaign in a before-school rally for SCA Elections.

During humanities symposium, Dr. Gene Adrean delights Carol Eubank, captivates Peggy Randall with commentary on Dante.

Anticipating SCA Clean Up Week inspection, Miss Jane Nichols, Margaret Tobey, and Anne Booker scrub homeroom 206.

SCA Officers' Election Tops Active Year

Under leadership of president Bob Ukrop, Student Cooperative Association planned and carried out a term of varied activity. A fall sockhop and spring "Sadie Hawkins" Dance augmented the treasury. SCA-sponsored Know Your School contest kindled school spirit, while retreat parades for each class determined the amount of class participation. Clean-Up Week also registered class interest and helpful projects, such as One Way signs for halls, benefited the entire student body.

Highlight of the second semester was election of SCA officers for the 1965-1966 school year. Vigorous campaigns preceded voting with an unprecedented percentage of students going to the polls. "Build Your House With Wood" led presidential candidate Anne Wood to victory. Earl Nance was elected vice-president, while Becky Byrd and Stuart Deibel were chosen secretary and treasurer as students responded to their successful campaigns.

Energetic Chancellors Bill Harwood, Hudson Jones, and Cindy Long "live it up" at football sock hop after game.

Police Force Demonstrates Use of Canines

Assemblies ranged from Muriel Grossfield's execution of a gymnastic routine to the police force's exhibition on techniques employed in apprehending criminals. Not only were they entertaining, but informative. The Third Annual History Department Washington Convocation, at which awards were presented to outstanding citizens of the state, acquainted students with George Washington's contributions to the United States.

Other types of assemblies dealt with skits accompanied by foreign carols, thus giving the observers a realistic picture of the Christmas Holiday in foreign lands. Gathered in the auditorium the day before Thanksgiving, students heard the real meaning of Thanksgiving explained by a fellow classmate and sang the well-known Thanksgiving hymn, "We Gather Together." Finally, the year was completed by Junior and Senior Award Assemblies, in addition to Senior Class Day Assembly.

Play Reflects Portion of Senior Personality

With tryouts finished, seniors beamed proudly at becoming part of The Mouse That Roared. Cast members found themselves on stage every afternoon practicing enunciation, remembering cues, memorizing lines, and making new friends.

The Mouse That Roared was growing warm beneath stage lights. It was sacrificing hours originally allotted for sleep and study. The Senior play meant finding a throne to seat the duchess, mixing purple dye to cover the WACS' feet, and cramming another cast member in a packed car to go to Kelly's. The play was feeling a consistent flutter in one's stomach on opening night. It was shouts of "Break a leg" and whispers of "Quiet, back stage". It was satisfaction at having one's presentation well received. The Mouse That Roared was a milestone in the significant year belonging to the Class of 1965.

Wayne Reynolds and Peggy Thompson, left "holding the bag" by cast and crew, straighten the stage following the Senior play.

Stunned by "quadium's" fatal results, Larry Morgan and Doug Peyronnet watch Clarke Crosby take it from Leonard Shields. In a moment of dramatic suspense, the court, Grand Fenwick's citizens, and American representative halt debate on surrender.

Prom's Teahouse Theme Creates Oriental Scene

Small squares of reflected light danced gaily on the gym floor while picturesque mountain scenery of lakes and cherry trees covered the walls. The stage was set. The theme, based on the title of J. Patrick's drama "Tea House of the August Moon," transported Chancellors to the Orient for one night. Swinging in beautiful simplicity, the throne and the carpeted walkway, leading from the bridge, provided a perfect setting for the crowning of the King and Queen. Jayne Brown and Bobby Ukrop were the surprised couple who reigned over the oriental evening.

To present this prom as their gift to the graduates, the class of '66 had planned, worried and worked. Juniors who worked on decorations and clean up were pleased with their efforts and shared with the seniors the enchantment of the Far Eastern theme.

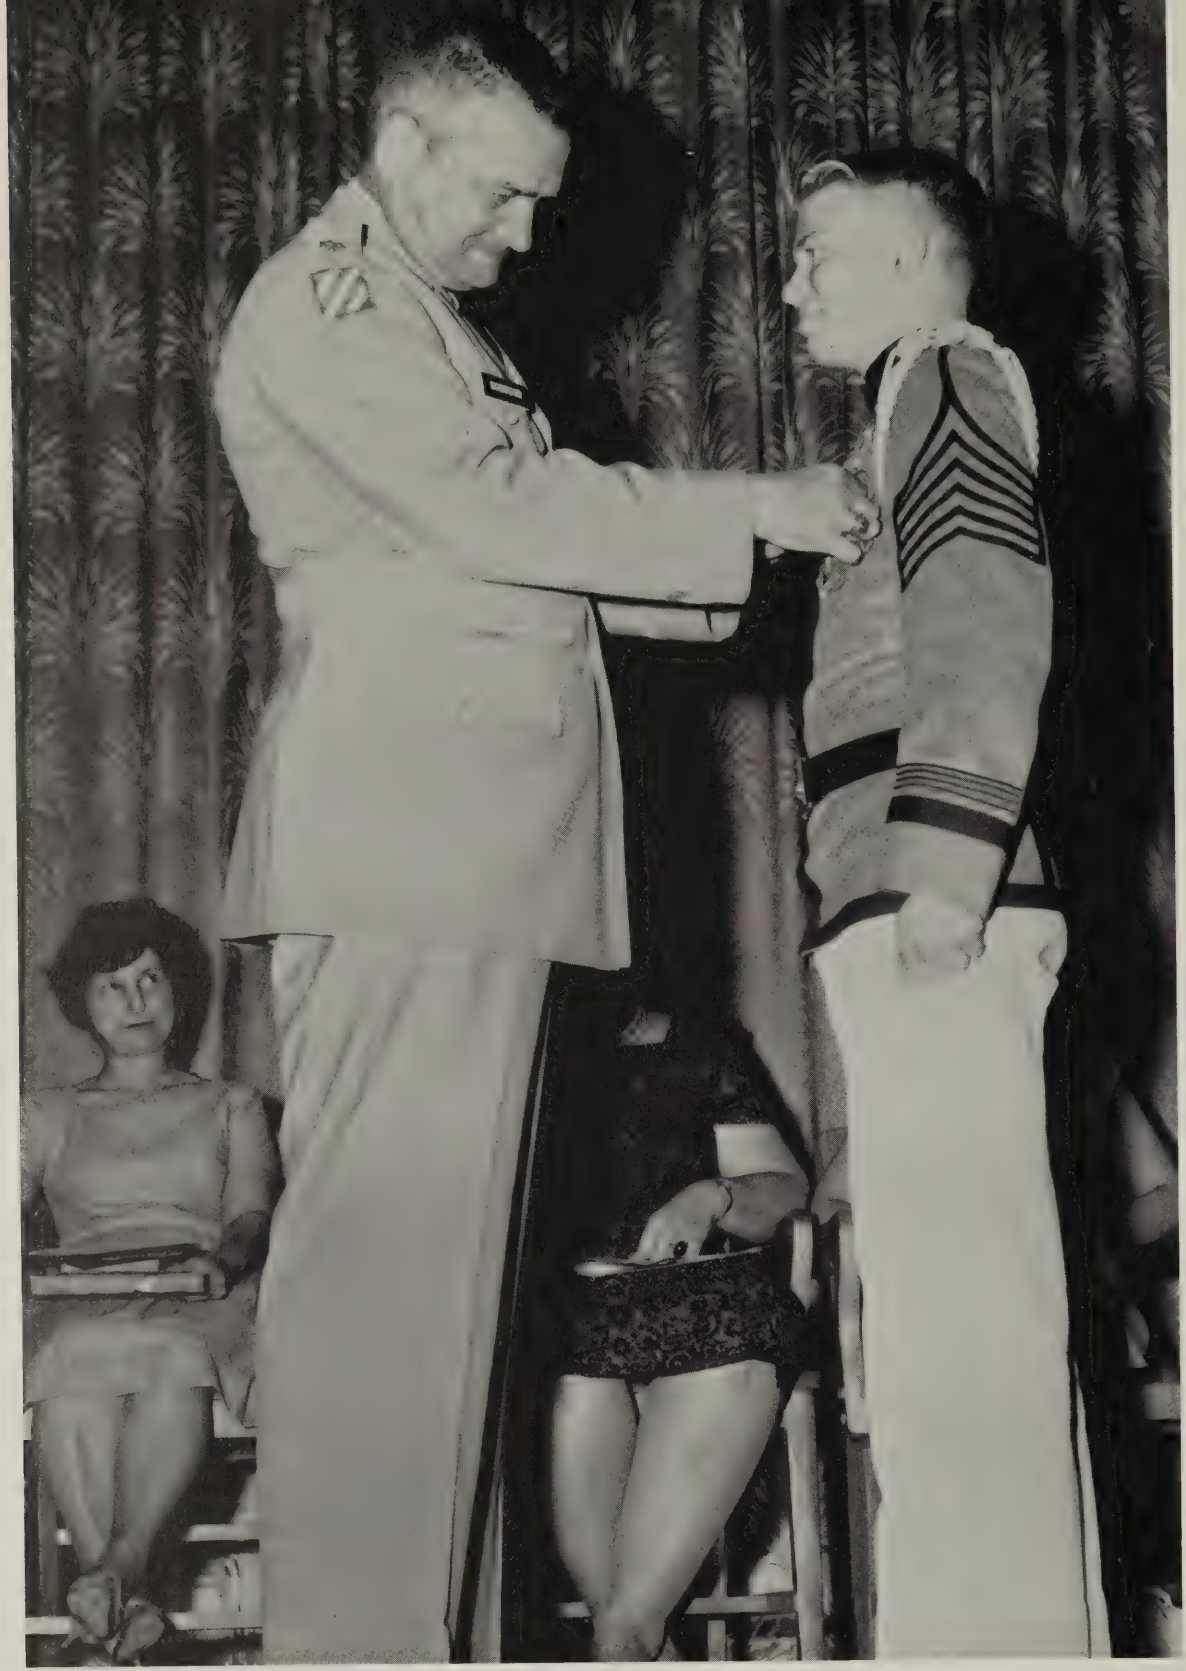
Determined to keep in step with music at graduation practice are Bob Dunn, Jack Driscoll, Jim Dowdy, and Mary Jones.



Many Awards Are Presented at Assembly

In the Senior Awards Assembly, which is one of the most exciting events of a student's Senior year, many members of the class of 1965 were honored. Anne Street and Jimmy Bruce, standing first and second academically in the Senior class, received the Academic Achievement Trophies while Donald Newcomb was awarded a $2,000 scholarship for outstanding achievement in the field of distributive education.

Another major event in the schedule was Cadet Graduation which marked the end of four years of dedicated work for Senior cadets. Awards for academics and drill were presented to many underclassmen as well as seniors.

Although the day was hot and humid, seniors enjoyed graduation practice at Dogwood Dell. At this practice final instructions were given by the principals. Following the sun drenched practice, all graduates raced to the picnic area for delicious box lunches.

Giving Determination Embraces Knowledge

Hands that give determination in ACADEMICS gather knowledge. Characteristic forms of this giving were a rapt expression of concentration, a waving arm signifying the search for answers, a pencil flying in inspiration across a lined piece of paper, the fervid exploration of dusty books to improve understanding, an active pursuit of knowledge. Reciprocally, Chancellors procured the incalculable. Teachers dedicated to conveying truth, to challenging the student, to intensifying the quest for insight, to encouraging the formation of individual opinions, returned an immeasurably greater gift. In the scholastic atmosphere of George Wythe High School, each reaching hand grasped; each searching mind conceived.

School Board

Interest Plus Enthusiasm Yield Beneficial Rewards

Continually seeking to improve Richmond's school system, the School Board held semi-monthly meetings. Frequent tours and visits to area schools, as well as studies of various other school systems, resulted in the betterment of the municipal education. The single goal of the Richmond City School Board —giving the Richmond area prepared and competent citizens for the future—was advanced.

The Board petitioned the City Council, which had pledged "a total commitment to education," for extra funds. The receipt benefited George Wythe, as well as the other city schools. Newly initiated Educational Television was financed by the allotment. New textbooks and equipment were also made available to Wythe administrators, teachers, and students.

Throughout the winter months, Chancellors were keenly aware of an important question often before Superintendent Willett: "School or no School? It's snowing!"

School Board Chairman, Frank S. Calkins, considers the problem before the Board, of increasing teachers' salaries.

Principal

Mr. Fary Initiates Independence in Studies

As past principal of numerous schools, Mr. Oscar Fary has had thirty-three years of authoritative experience. He gained valuable additional administrative experience through his active participation in the Naval Reserve program. He was the commanding officer of the Reserve Officers Naval School from the time of its organization in 1955, until 1964. Then, while maintaining the rank of captain, he assumed an advisory position. George Wythe also benefited under Mr. Fary's expert guidance. Under his capable leadership, independent study was stressed for able students as they were encouraged to pursue individual research. Furthermore, progressive courses in major fields were added to the curriculum. The dual duties of commanding officer and principal did not occupy all of Mr. Fary's time. An expert angler and seaman, he enjoyed leisure time fishing, boating with his wife.

Assistant Principal

Guidance Duties Promote Close Association

With the temporary absence of Mrs. Page Tennis, Mr. Angelo Setien assumed the responsibilities of head of the Guidance Department. Problems encountered in the department were referred to his attention for immediate action. This added responsibility was coupled with his regular duty of supervising finances.

Mr. Setien was responsible for sending detailed financial reports of the school's expenditures to the main administrative office. Treasurers serving classes and organizations, as well as the business managers of the three publications, were frequent visitors to his office.

Believing that one should spend time with a student to more fully understand him, Mr. Setien was Summer School administrator for the third consecutive year. Under his supervision, both the enrollment increased and the choice of subjects broadened. As a frequent spectator at Wythe sports events, he also became closer to his students.

Mrs. Barbara Bass and Mr. Clarence Cowles have a conference with Mr. Setien on admission fee to summer school.

An ardent supporter of George Wythe activities, Mr. Setien concentrates on a decisive shot in the JM basketball game.

Because of a busy schedule, students see only a fleeting shadow of their assistant principal, Mr. John Schneider.

Assistant Principal

Night School and Textbooks Consume Time

Throughout the spring and summer months, Mr. John Schneider worked diligently toward class organization. However, offering courses for students, assigning teachers to classes, and scheduling students for desired subjects were only a part of his responsibilities as assistant principal.

As the year proceeded, Mr. Schneider's attention was directed to the principalship of Night School and the management of textbooks. With the aid of Mrs. Ruby Tyree, he maintained records of the textbooks used in classes. Together they kept a running inventory of books in circulation as well as ordering supplemental textbooks.

Regular daily work was supplemented by his interest in student activities. Time to support the teams on and off the field, to chaperone sock hops, to attend the Junior-Senior, and to participate in other student functions found a place in his busy schedule.

Secretaries

Efforts of Secretaries Combine for Success

Absence of the IBM greatly affected the secretaries' schedules. Daily duties once handled by Wythe's own IBM shifted to the secretaries as the machine began to function for all Richmond schools. Changes in Mrs. Sarah Brooks' daily routine were especially pronounced. Each morning, she marked absentees, early departures, and tardinesses on sheets for fifty-eight homerooms. After completing these sheets, Mrs. Brooks sent them to the Central Data Processing Office.

Obtaining substitutes was a perpetual problem handled by Mrs. Helen Crosby. She was also responsible for managing the pay-roll, depositing funds, and assigning seventh periods to "naughty" Chancellors.

Mrs. Mildred Parr, joining the staff at the beginning of the school year, was officially assigned as Night School secretary. However, her duty expanded as she assisted Mrs. Brooks and Mrs. Crosby in completing work.

Left: Mrs. Mildred Parr, Night School secretary, supplements regular work by helping the Day School secretaries. Center: Numerous telephone calls combined with various other secretarial tasks complete Mrs. Crosby's busy schedule. Right: As part of her morning routine, Mrs. Sarah Brooks records students arriving late and those leaving early.

V.I.P. Enlightens Seniors With Class '65 News

"V.I.P.," Very Important Paper, was a new highlight of the Guidance Department. This newspaper was designed to keep seniors informed of upcoming events which vitally concerned their futures. Monthly editions, containing dates of important tests, information about scholarships and graduation, and college and career clues, were issued to all seniors. Guiding students through the year and preparing them for each new challenge was the function of the Wythe Guidance Department. Aiming to help students transform tentative ideas into definite goals and youthful plans into future realizations, the department sponsored such functions as College Night, Medics' Day, Armed Service Day, interviews for students with college and business representatives, and various testing programs. The willingness of the students to seek help and their firm confidence in the department made the work effective and rewarding.

Educational TV Presents Newer Teaching Method

Members of the History Department instituted new concepts in teaching to encourage individual efforts toward a diversified education. Through educational television and a senior honors government class, students were given a better understanding of historic events, current world problems, and principal government procedures. Educational television exposed students to an up-dated teaching process. Instructors of ETV were specifically trained in precise areas. Subjects were offered twice a week in group classes to achieve uniformity in presentation of material. The honors government class rendered exceptional students a better opportunity for self-expression. Those participating in debates and seminar discussions probed into the problems relating to elections in the United States and crises of the world. Through installation of modernized courses, the History Department brought a greater meaning to the education.

Courses Give Chancellors Challenge in the Sciences

Highlights in the Science Department curriculum were new and provocative courses. Advanced Placement Chemistry gave fourteen students the opportunity to experiment on the college level. George Wythe also became one of seventy schools in the nation to offer Earth Science, a course consisting entirely of independent student experimentation. Under the instruction of Mr. George Mader and Mr. Leo Rogan, superior pupils conducted experiments in BSCS Biology and advanced physics after school.

An intensified emphasis was placed upon student initiative. A semester of creativity culminated with the Science Open House featuring outstanding projects. A weather station operated solely by science students was further illustrative of this increased emphasis.

Climaxing the year was the Junior Academy of Science, which met in Richmond. Those scientific Chancellors chosen to attend left the conference with a lasting impression of the power of reasoning.

Language Department

Teachers Spark Interest Through Newer Methods

Laboratory training became dominant in the teaching of foreign languages, whether Latin, French, Spanish, German, or Russian. Realizing that interest was stimulated through participation, teachers constantly presented new techniques. The many students who had received training in language prior to high school enjoyed an advanced study, having already acquired a basic foundation. Diligent students gained fluency in pronunciation by speaking almost entirely in the tongues they studied. Teachers also lectured in foreign tongues.

Foreign language students also gained an insight on the cultural aspects and geography of a country. Literature, dated as far back as the seventeenth century, was revealed to French students studying classical plays. The study of such authors as Voltaire and Rousseau supported an intensive study not only of the language but also of the land, philosophy, and government of the French.

Students Broaden Scope of Mathematics Concepts

Under the leadership of Mrs. Doris Turner, head of the Mathematics Department, a new approach was taken; each student was provided with the opportunity to explore new fields and to advance beyond the traditional courses. Eighth grade classes broadened their knowledge with research papers and special projects. Seniors in the advanced program explored the new and challenging limit concepts. A morning class of approximately ten students met twice weekly under the instruction of Mrs. Martha Walden. These potential math majors delved into the principles and functions of modern mathematics.

Further enlarging the opportunity to explore and advance, Mrs. Turner offered her office as a mathematics library. There, diligent students found they could either strengthen their knowledge in familiar mathematics or pursue courses of increased difficulty that they would not ordinarily have become acquainted with in high school studies.

Adapted Programs Offer Broad New Perspectives

After five years, the English Department emerged from its experimental period into a period of tested programs. Encompassing the successful trial programs of previous years, a sequential guide, complete with structural assignments, was put into use. To stimulate the students to reason and to draw parallels, teachers correlated compositions with reading and humanity programs. To enhance the program, lay readers were employed. Modern instruction was prevalent as language, literature composition and grammar were integrated in all classes. Speed, developmental, and remedial reading was extended so that more students could become involved. At the dedication of the amphitheatre, English students presented an outdoor dramatization of George Wythe's life. The talents of each area of the department were utilized as English classes wrote the script, speech classes delivered choral readings, and drama classes enacted tableaux.

Energetic Pupils Develop Skills in Physical Fitness

For the fifth consecutive year, energetic Chancellors participated in the varied activities of daily physical education classes. Such sports as basketball, touch football, soccer, golf, archery, track and field, gymnastics, and tennis were enthusiastically played by many students. In addition to giving physical energy, tenth graders divided mental energy between driver education and health, while eighth and ninth graders apportioned cranial energy between health and first aid.

The intramural program consisted of mixed bowling leagues. Boys also enjoyed homeroom basketball after school. The series of games was climaxed by a championship game. Dad's Night every month was the highlight of the program, with fathers and sons together striving for physical excellence.

Beginning-of-the-year aches and pains rewardingly culminated in physical fitness. Through both individual and team efforts, students found satisfaction through participation.

Library

Traditional and Futuristic Are Successfully Unified

To the library's already modern facilities the library staff made additions to meet the demands of both present and future. A section of current and classical paper-backs became a permanent fixture. Educational Television, a library-sponsored experiment, was enjoyed in history classes throughout the school. Additional audio-visual, listening, and recording equipment was offered, broadening the scope of material teachers presented to their classes and making special projects more stimulating.

Traditional aspects were also enlarged. The familiar shelves of hard-back books carried a heavier load. The magazine racks continued to carry the newest issues of favorites. Back dated periodicals were available upon request. New additions strengthened the reference section, especially designated for special research.

With the effective mingling of modern and traditional, the library housed not only answers, but the provocation of better questions.

Art Appreciation Stressed More Intricately

Increased emphasis on art appreciation and art history was placed by the Art Department. Students probed more deeply into the early beginnings of creative design and painting to discover the birth of artistic techniques. Studying the development of these classical techniques through the ages gave the student a clearer understanding of the principles and functions of art today.

Paralleling the study of art history, the Art Department, under the guidance of Mr. Randy Cheatham, urged the purposeful creativity on the part of each student. This individual expression was stressed as essential for artistic advancement.

The young artists in the classroom learned and absorbed the knowledge that their instructors had accumulated from past experiences. Combining their techniques, principles, and discoveries with those of their own, the beginning artists created expressive works of art reflective of themselves.

Shorthand, Bookkeeping Practice Insure Careers

Preparing students in basic skills which would aid them in college life or professional careers was the goal of the George Wythe Business Department. Among those skills to be mastered were shorthand, bookkeeping, typing, and clerical practice. Insuring the security of good employment after graduation, teachers worked with their students in improving both their physical and mental competence and proficiency.

Familiarizing students with the business program began at the junior high school level as Mrs. Jane Williams, VOT coordinator, and Mr. John Arnold, head of the Business Department spoke to the young pupils about business courses offered at George Wythe. Upon entering Wythe, many immediately entered the business program. Others took varied business courses as a firm foundation for whatever program they anticipated completing in high school and whatever position they hoped to assume later as adults.

Perseverance and Study Help Girls Perfect Skills

Through their gifts of time and effort, girls in the Home Economics Department reaped large and far-reaching benefits. Utilizing the expanding facilities of the department, future housewives and mothers learned to strive for perfection in all phases of homemaking. In addition to the basic cooking and sewing arts, students delved eagerly into interior decorating. Further, a daytime play-school for young children stressed the importance of child care, while providing an important and very necessary service. Numerous speakers gave interesting and informative talks dealing with many fields of human relation.

The newly formed Future Homemakers Club of America provided a worthwhile outlet for those wishing to further their knowledge of this practical subject. Rewarding superior skills, awards for outstanding Home Ec students were presented to several deserving seniors who excelled in the past year.

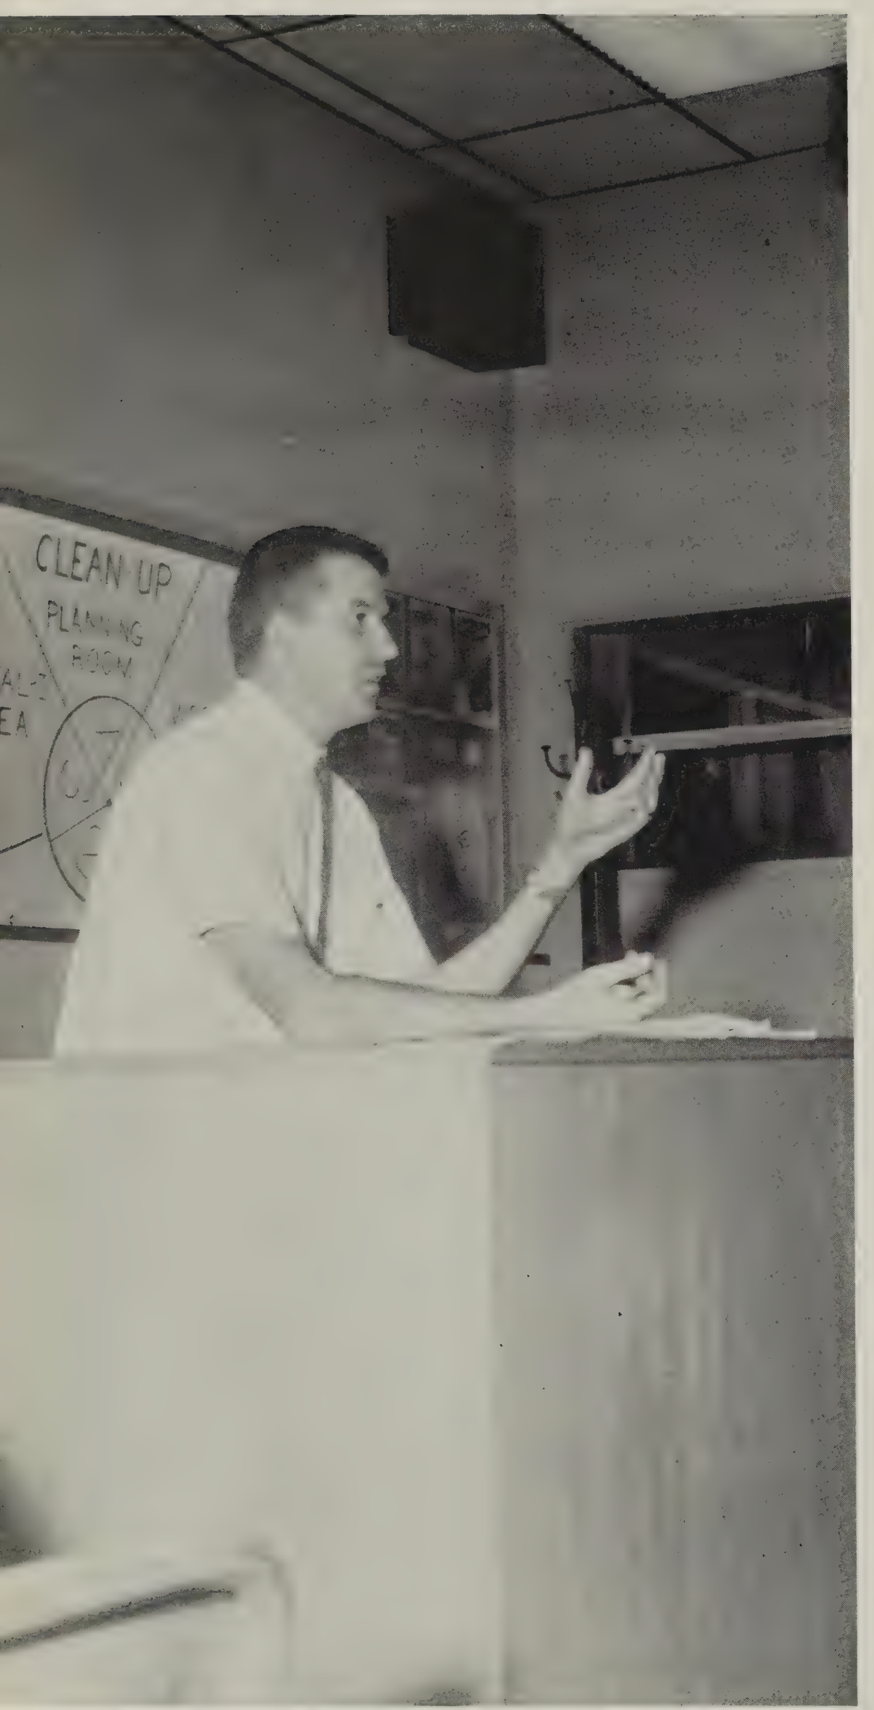
Industrial Arts Department

Ambitious Pupils Evolve Many Creative Interests

Enlarging the variety of applied skills offered to students was the major effort of the Industrial Arts Department. Working with art metals and sheet metals and casting aluminum and brass were among the various skills taught in the spacious metal shop. A new addition to this area was an electronics section. There, students learned basic fundamentals of complex techniques. As they became more advanced and proficient, they applied their knowledge by working on old televisions and radios. In the well equipped wood shop, pupils were under expert guidance as they created bookcases, coffee tables, and other furniture items. Newly added, the ceramics area held liquid clay in prepared molds from which students made professional casts. Instructors covered efficient shopwork and safe operation of machinery in the classroom where students built the foundations of purposeful creatively in work areas.



Lecturing emphatically on the topic of workshop safety, Mr. Charles Gurkin stresses careful operation of machinery.

Using the manually operated hack saw, a basic instrument of the shop, Mr. Lang instructs Ernest Landrum in the most effective method of cutting a steel bar.

Music Students Gain Individual Excellence

"Hallelujah!" ended the presentation of the Christmas portion of the "Messiah." The combined choirs and orchestras of Thomas Jefferson, John Marshall, and George Wythe presented the cantata. Each student contributed his musical talent to perfect the December performance.

Both Mr. John Yeager, director of vocal music, and Mr. Aleo Sica, director of the Concert Band, Cadet Band, and the orchestra, encouraged participation in vocal and instrumental music. Orchestra members enjoyed ensembles, small groups in which the talent of each participant was visible. Wythe Madrigalists, composed of twelve selected choir members, sang both early and modern madrigals.

George Wythe greatly benefited from the excellence attained within the Music Department. Music for the Senior Class Play was provided by the orchestra. The Concert Choir brought additional beauty and dignity to each assembly in which they sang.

During class rehearsals for the December performance, Concert Choir members strive to perfect each section of the "Messiah."

Health Department

Capable Nurse Ministers to Co-operative Students

Guiding Chancellors to realize the importance of good health and the prevention of poor health were the coupled duties of Mrs. Edith Staples as school nurse. With the help of Dr. Seth Gayle, she conducted the regular physical examinations of many students and of all athletes. Thereby keeping complete records of physical well-being, she was familiar with the health of each Wythe pupil. "Stop it before it stops you!" was the warning students received of potential health difficulties.

Throughout the school year, Mrs. Staples treated injuries and sicknesses. Whether the victim suffered from a major fracture or a minor scratch, he received excellent attention in the nurse's office. There, staffed with competent student helpers who looked toward nursing as a future career, Mrs. Staples contributed to the entire student body through her patience and capability.

Driver Training

Safe Driving Techniques Stressed in Classrooms

During their study halls, Chancellors desiring to learn and to apply driving skills participated in the driver training course under the instruction of Messrs. Joe Locke and Clarence Hale. Each student found self-satisfaction in the knowledge that through his own driving improvement, both he and the other users of the nation's highways profited.

Before actually maneuvering vehicles, pupils attended classes in the driver training trailer. They became familiar with traffic laws, safe driving practices, fundamentals of automobile mechanisms and all factors of the "Golden Rule of the Road." Only after thorough classroom preparation was a student placed behind the wheel. With full realization of the responsibility he assumed upon turning the ignition key, the driver drove cautiously and expertly. Prepared by both knowledge and experience, each student found he could take the driver's seat with complete confidence.

Before taking the learner's permit examination, Darlene Chamberlain concentrates on the fundamentals of driving.

Military Department

Cadets Attain Excellence With Assiduous Training

Boys who participated in George Wythe Cadet Corps were trained to be leaders, in military or civilian role. Striving to meet standards of the United States Military Department, each cadet found cooperation and devotion essential. He realized that upon his achievement rested the excellence of the entire corps. Under Colonel James Norwood, superiority in every phase was stressed. Intensive classroom study and a program of modified military training were pursued by cadets. They participated in field trips, drills, and training. Highlights of the program were excursions to V.M.I. and Fort Lee. The major social function was the annual Christmas Hop and Figure. Each cadet, holding high the name of the Wythe Corps, grew as a well-rounded individual ready to assume responsibility of leadership.

Practical Nursing

Daily Instruction Sparks Interest of Each Student

Students were offered the advantage of a new course in practical nursing. Interested girls had the opportunity to assure themselves that nursing was their aspiration for the future.

Textbooks taught fundamental knowledge—the structure and functions of the human body. Instructors illustrated practical skills. Through observation of skilled nurses, students absorbed necessary techniques.

Nursing pupils aimed to develop good vocational relationships. Through intense and thorough training, they came to realize the importance of being able to think quickly, help patiently, and act skillfully. They acquired characteristics necessary for the nursing profession—the ability to do the job, the desire to do it well. Through careful practice, concentrated observation, and diligent study, they grew to understand that, though they would be expected to render hours of work and to sacrifice other activities, they would achieve satisfaction.

Vocational Office Training

VOT Furnishes Present Job Education for Pupils

Business oriented seniors had an opportunity to learn basic skills through the Vocational Office Training program. Students took four required subjects in the morning including a class in the "office laboratory." The six work stations in the laboratory included instructions by typewriting and usage of duplicating and adding machines. A unit on mental health helped them to improve and understand both themselves and student-employer relationships. Putting the knowledge they gained through in-school training into practice, they gained experience through half-day employment.

VOT rendered dual benefits. It served numerous employers by providing them with a continual source of screened employees well-trained in the jobs they chose to undertake. More importantly, the class benefited the students by providing them with opportunity to take high school courses while preparing for future business careers.

VMI Prepares Students For Industrial Vocations

Ernest C. Baxendell

As a part of the Trade Preparatory Program, Virginia Mechanics Institute provided interested juniors and seniors with the opportunity to gain practical knowledge as apprentice tradesmen. Choosing from three divisions—the mechanics shop, the electricity department, and the machine shop—students selected their areas of specialization.

Pupils studying mechanics prepared themselves for future jobs in the automotive industry. By working with such equipment as valve grinders, borers, armature winders, and distributor testers, they acquired and perfected applicable skills. They also practiced with motors which were donated by major automobile manufacturers. Students taking electronic courses progressed from the study of the circuit, the vacuum tube, and the radio to the advanced study of television electronics. Machine shop students learned manual creative arts.

Together, the three VMI departments served students by providing them with the knowledge and experience to begin careers as tradesmen after high school graduation.

Mrs. Beverly Lowe, cafeteria manager, promoted stimulating meals by dubbing dishes with such names as "school-spirit cake" and "never-tell-a-lie cherry pie." Further interest in the school lunch program was prompted by bring "National School Lunch Week" closer to the students. Each day of the week was designated for a particular class to have its favorite menu served.

Maintenance

Friendly Custodians Are Maintaining Clean School

Mr. Frank Garber and his expert staff made a clean sweep of George Wythe High School. Through hard work and infinite patience, they were able to continually maintain the Chancellor building in excellent condition. Contributing to this successful accomplishment was their constant vigilance and instant response to the familiar double-ring call of duty. Their everlasting battle against litter, however, never kept the maintenance staff from remaining cheerful and pleasant at all times.

During the summer as well as the school year, and during the night as well as the day, custodians washed myriads of windows, mowed expansive lawns, waxed innumerable floors in addition to other endless and varied jobs. Chancellors found that by giving cooperation in school maintenance, Mr. Garber and his staff, in turn, gave extra time and care to Chancellor needs.

During one of the few breaks in Mr. Garber's schedule, he plans a careful routine for the maintenance of Night School.

Distributive Education

Retailing Careers Evolve Through Class and Club

Future leaders in marketing and distribution were developed in the Distributive Education Department. Its functions were triform—class, club, and job.

Classroom instruction provided basic knowledge. Students learned correct procedure for interviews, selling, marketing, and merchandising. Realizing that not only skill but also social intelligence was vital, D.E. pupils studied methods for improving personal traits and civic consciousness.

This active chapter of the Distributive Education Clubs of America promoted knowledge of successful careers in the competitive enterprise system. Members took field trips in which they explored Richmond business districts. They also heard speakers accomplished in their business careers.

Finally, the student applied his knowledge in on-the-job training. Earning both high school credits and salary, he entered a merchandising career as a student employee. Therein, he gained experience to advance as a skilled and competent adult.

Active SCA Encourages Student Body Enthusiasm

"A more active SCA" keynoted the campaign for Bob Ukrop's election as president in the spring. Through vigorous work and enthusiasm, the activities of the Student Cooperative Association broadened every aspect of the school year.

Attempting to unify the school organizations, the SCA initiated an interclub committee with a representative from each school club. Weeks which were set aside to emphasize certain phases of the students' lives added spirit to the school. A Sadie Hawkins dance after the Lane game and a fall sock hop were among the social activities the Association sponsored. The SCA also gave Thanksgiving baskets and food at Christmas time to their adopted needy family.

George Wythe experienced a year of active participation created by the enthusiastic representatives of the SCA. The rewards encompassed an informed and interested student body.

Quill and Scroll

Initiation, Tea, Banquet Conclude Year's Activity

Truth, Initiative, Opportunity, Leadership, and Loyalty served as keynotes of the George Wythe Chapter of Quill and Scroll. In a most impressive initiation the journalistic honor society inducted twenty seven new members before an audience which was awed by the solemn candle-lighting program. New members were further initiated into the practices of the organization as they helped wash a countless number of punch cups after the annual tea.

These activities ended a year which was highlighted by the Publications Banquet. At this time the editors for next year were announced. The occasion was enlivened by Toastmaster Harvey Margolis, a George Wythe Quill and Scroll alumnus. Comedy routines consisting of a STATESMAN skit, a LEDGER song, and several CHANCELLOR poems used to reveal names of editors were typical of the creativity of members.

Thespian Society Inducts Talented Drama Students

During April Thespian Assembly, President Anne Booker installs Louise Bono while Bill Harrison watches and waits.

Troupe 2276 set as their goals the promotion of the theatre standards in high schools and the creation of a greater interest in dramatics. Succeeding in both areas, the Dramatics Club participated in the Senior Class play, "The Mouse That Roared." The members' enthusiasm and effort was also evident in the one-act play, "Pierre Patelin." In these plays Thespians headed large crews and helped with the production, art, lighting, and costumes. They served as ushers, sold refreshments, and gave backstage assistance to the Shakespearean players in their production of "Julius Caesar."

Thespian pledges obtained their membership by gaining points which they earned through participation in the dramatic activities of the school. Eleven new members who had above average scholastic standings were inducted into the society at the Thespian Assembly in April. Anne Booker, president of the Thespian Society, solemnly installed happy new Senior members, who repeated the Thespian pledge after her.

French Club

Club Organized to Study French History and Arts

Considerable excitement was generated among ambitious French students when the pending formation of the French Club was announced. Having been proposed by several interested students, the club was organized under the supervision of sponsor Miss Sarah Brennan. The objective of "Le Cercle Francais" was to give French students a chance to become proficient in the language and history of France.

President Judy Spain and her planning committee arranged many interesting programs for the monthly club meetings. Among these presentations were a lecture and film by Colonel James Norwood describing the customs of the French people, a program on French art, and a demonstration of French music and modern dance by Miss Betsy Burton. Members of the club produced and directed a sophisticated French play and enjoyed a club picnic in the early spring.

Chancellor

Anniversary Volume Is Exciting Work for Staff

Work was the word for which the 1965 Chancellor staff had the most respect, for a unified staff is a diversified staff. Editors Jack Driscoll, Anne Street, and Cathy Whitlock saw that work began with selling ads and continued until the last page was planned.

Each person on the CHANCELLOR staff completed two pages for each section of the yearbook, including layouts, headlines, copy, and cutlines, and kept the photographers busy snapping pictures of activities. As well as the usual daily staff study, staff members met every Wednesday afternoon for an extra hour of work. The numerous dilemmas which confronted CHANCELLOR members during the year were overcome only by the concentrated effort of each individual.

With the cooperation of faculty and students the Chancellor staff and sponsors (Miss Withers and Mrs. Norris) produced the fifth volume reflecting a vibrant year of school life.

Cartoon Strips Illustrate Educational Lead Stories

Giving energy and ingenuity, the WYTHE LEDGER staff, under the guidance of Mrs. Henrietta Kinman, produced a newspaper reflecting the life and vitality of George Wythe. The sports pages reported all Bulldog and Lady Bulldog clashes while regular articles kept Chancellors informed of current happenings.

Many new journalistic inspirations enriched the WYTHE LEDGER. Letters to the Editor expressed students' and alumni views on controversial subjects. As homework became the issue, alumni maintained that a great quantity was essential while high school writers urged more leisure time. Featuring two cartoon characters, Sam and Rock, teenagers in academic situations, the cartoon strips reflected the lead stories. To increase Chancellors' understanding of the entire city school system, the staff wrote lead stories on Superintendent H. I. Willett's five year plan, illustrating the advancements planned by the School Board.

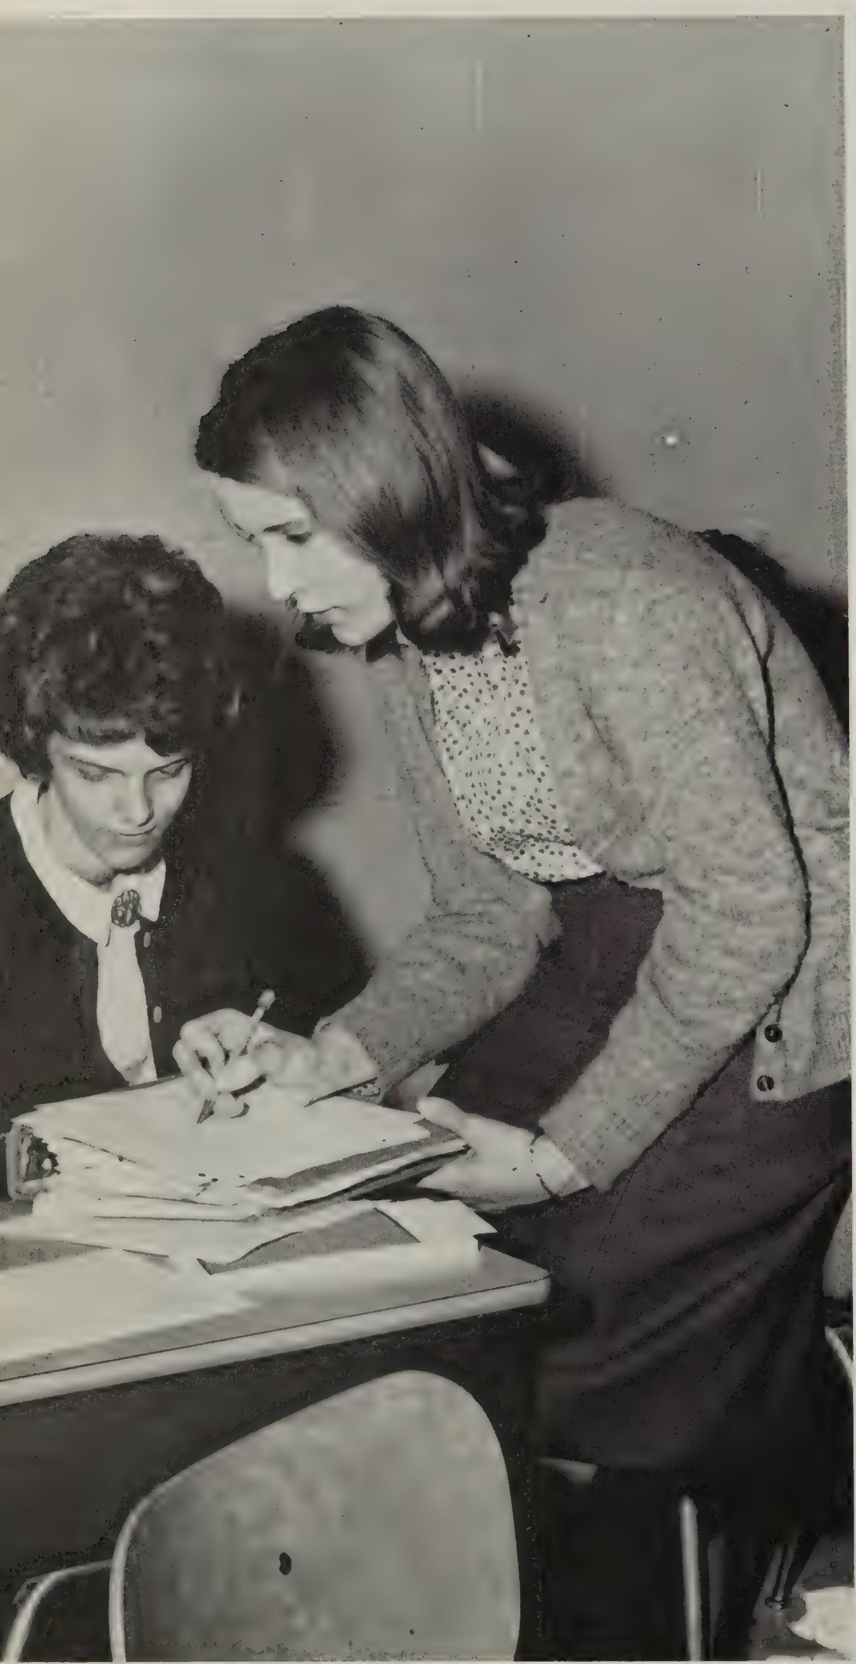
Statesman

"Man Against Time" Reflects Staff Concern



Martha Hamill proposes a possible revision to material that she and Claudia Byrd are considering for the STATESMAN.

Each student who attended George Wythe was faced with an immense problem. He had to choose a course—whether to merely exist or to excel. With this decision in mind the STATESMAN chose as its theme, "Man Against Time," represented George Wythe and its students. The issue proved George Wythe to be the epitome of increasing proficiency, with each student individually reaching for excellence.

With co-operation from staff members, Tim Brown, editor-in-chief, and Martha Hamill, associate editor, strove to present the school's theme through dramatically executed layouts. They also made changes in the conventional art section and devised other new approaches for presenting the students' efforts.

All students, as well as the staff, were offered a chance to express their thoughts. In turn, they obtained praise for their talents and attained a feeling of personal achievement.

Debate Team

Debate Team Gains Skill in Analysis and Delivery

Meeting weekly, the debate team engaged in discussion sessions and practice debates before entering active competition. Individual and group research provided them with material for these preparatory debates which were rewarding and challenging. Debate kits, which the school purchased, consisted of pamphlets, reprints from government information services, and books on the subject of nuclear control, disarmament, and the effects of radiation. By employing these aids, they prepared for their topic: "Resolved: That Nuclear Weapons Should Be Controlled By An International Organization."

Prepared through research and study, the debate team entered competition in the Invitational Debate Tournament and the District Contest sponsored by the Virginia High School League. With both practice and knowledge as their foundation, the members gained insight into current problem areas, as well as skill in logic, refutation, analysis, organization, and delivery.

Library Staff

Library Assistants Urge Others to Possess Pride

Tommy and Page Nance choose from the variety of paperbacks while Darlene Chamberlain suggests good reading material.

Achieving library efficiency was the aim of Miss Margaret Copenhaver, Miss Marie Mason and the library staff. Mending worn bindings, helping confused students in selecting reference material, collecting overdue fines, reserving needed books, caring for and operating the audio-visual equipment, and processing new books were among the duties library assistants performed throughout the day. As the library's facilities expanded, a new job was added. The staff sold a variety of paperback books to encourage students to start their own libraries and increase their appreciation of books.

As a valuable component of the scholastic atmosphere of the library, a "C" average was established as the minimum grade requirement for a staff position. Additionally, they attempted to initiate pride within the Chancellors for their library, having themselves gained a deeper pride through diligent work.

Hi-Y

Excellent in Competition Club Wins Championship

After revising their old constitution to meet present needs, the Hi-Y began an active year. In October, they sent six delegates to the District Conference in Hopewell. As a service to the cheerleaders, Hi-Y boys assisted them by painting signs for Bulldog clashes. The year's social activities included two hayrides.

Arousing strong spirit among their members, they defeated the Key Club in the annual basketball game. They also won the championship in the basketball league consisting of six area Hi-Y clubs, preceding their victorious clash with the League All-Stars. Adding to their sports record, the Wythe Hi-Y was league champ in touch football.

During National Hi-Y week in January, the club attended church. Their religious activities were carried through the Christmas season by holding a devotion. Caroling, ending with a Christmas party, highlighted the season.

Future Teachers of America

Programs Spark Interest in Future Career

Planning to serve as teachers, FTA members enjoyed programs related to the preparation for their chosen career. Groups consisting of members of each class presented effective programs. Each group chose as its topic a phase of college life. Miss Sarah Brennan spoke on the experiences of a student abroad in the Sophomore program. The juniors had Miss Lucille Gillespie speak to underclassmen on getting in college while Mrs. Martha Ryan, student teacher, gave tips on staying there. FTA members received first-hand knowledge of college life by visiting Richmond Professional Institute in the program planned by the seniors.

Members reached the goal they set three years ago. They were able to present their first hundred dollar scholarship to the senior they felt would competently assume the role of a Future Teacher of America.

Under the guidance of club sponsors, Mrs. Helena Lawrence and Mrs. Patricia Wenger, the Distributive Education Club remained an important facet of the business student's life. Through persistent efforts, club members maintained the ideals of the organization: civic consciousness, vocational understanding, social intelligence, and leadership development.

Exemplifying their civic consciousness, members collected twenty-eight Thanksgiving baskets for the Student Co-operative Association. The practical knowledge gained through daily business association and strengthened by observation at Richmond Professional Institute built the members' vocational understanding. Participation in the Christmas social at R.P.I. and the district convention at Thomas Jefferson were illustrative of the expansion of their social intelligence. Leadership development was epitomized by Don Newcomb, president of the Wythe Chapter, vice-president of the Virginia DE Clubs, and a candidate for national president of the Distributive Education Clubs of America.

Under the supervision of sponsor, Mrs. Edith Staples, school nurse, the Future Medics club offered various opportunities for students interested in medical careers. During Future Medic's Career Week posters and displays were exhibited pertaining to careers in the field of medicine. Highlighting this week was "Medical College Day" when representatives from various colleges gave students insight into medical vocations.

Other club activities included visits to the new Sheltering Arms Hospital and to the new Welfare Building located in the Richmond Civic Center. In November eighteen members traveled to the University of Virginia in Charlottesville where they toured the hospital and training school, receiving practical knowledge of nursing. The volunteer project of the Club for December was stuffing envelopes and performing various jobs for the Richmond area branch of Tuberculosis Society.

Red Cross

School Departments Aid Club in Service Projects

"We believe in service for others, for our country, our community, and our school . . .", states the American Junior Red Cross Declaration of Principles. Keeping these principles in mind, the Junior Red Cross members performed their service projects.

Club members achieved their goals of service with the aid of school departments. The History Department aided the Red Cross in sending albums depicting life in America to foreign countries. With the assistance of the Business Department, the Junior Journal was published and sent to shut-in children. The Art Department helped to create the centerpiece for the Worldarama, held at the Mosque.

Gifts of unselfish services were shown by "teenaiders" and the Disaster Team. "Teenaiders" used their creative ability to comfort and entertain patients, while the Disaster Team helped in disaster areas at home and abroad.

Almost two hundred girls, representing grades eight through twelve, united to form George Wythe's largest club, the Girls' Athletic Association. At a tea held in September, the entire membership met the club's sponsor, Miss Carolyn Anthony, and the new officers. Gold pins and charms were made available to those who wished to purchase them, and plans were made for the coming year. Members energetically began work on many projects: sponsoring an intramural sports program which featured archery, modern dance, tennis, bowling, and basketball; providing Thanksgiving baskets for needy families in the Richmond area; and planning the annual talent show, titled "A Round Peg in A Square Hole."

Full houses both nights saw talented Chancellors perform twenty acts. Through the endeavors of the GAA ,Wythe enjoyed a clever presentation.

FBLA

Adept, Capable Seniors Take Numerous Honors

Seeking to stimulate interest and participation among business students, the Future Business Leaders of America pursued "Upward and Onward through FBLA" as their theme. Their many activities included FBLA week, workshops, and conventions.

Throughout FBLA week, members recognized teachers with flowers, typed for the various departments, dressed appropriately for business offices, and had five guest speakers. Among the speakers was Mr. Arthur L. Walker, founder of FBLA in Virginia. Climaxing the week was the election of Phyllis Willard as Miss FBLA.

Many members of the Wythe chapter attended local, state, and national conventions. At the Longwood convention, Bonnie Talley was elected regional secretary. Phyllis Willard was elected state president at the Roanoke convention. Entering contests in public speaking, parliamentary law, exhibit and bulletin board making, the Wythe chapter further demonstrated their ability to succeed.

Art Club

Sketching Trips Excite Creativity Development

Varied activities of the Art Club provided artistically oriented students with an opportunity to further develop their creative talents. To broaden their artistic ability, they sketched from the classical to the modern, from old homes to bowling alleys. Another activity, designing stained glass windows for the show cases in the front hall at Christmas, allowed club members to render decorative service to their school.

An opportunity to gain understanding and appreciation of art was furnished by periodic trips to the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts and other local museums where members viewed such exhibits as the master prints from the Rosenwald Collection. The club also took part in the annual art show put on to display the creative triumphs of students. The year was highlighted by a spring banquet at the S&W Cafeteria.

Future Homemakers of America

Intent of Novice Club Is Securing Junior Degree

Improvement of personal, family and community relations was the main goal of the newly formed Future Homemakers of America, a chapter of the national organization founded in 1947. The club was composed of all interested students who had had at least one previous year of Home Economics.

During the first meeting members selected basic goals for the club from the subjects recommended by the national FHA. "Teenage Consumer" and "Developing Ways to Communicate with Family Members" were among the topics adopted. Their aim was the acquisition of the Junior Degree, one of the three degrees of proficiency procured by successfully fulfilling objectives which represented improvement in the abilities of a future homemaker.

Planned activities of the club included a bake sale and sending Sherry Franklin, president of the club, as a delegate to the FHA conference.

"Messiah" Presentation Is Keynote of Activities

"Chantones"—Bonnie Andrews, Charmaine Bechtler, Diane Ritchie, and Rita Holt—rehearse lyrics before an assembly.

Through various presentations, the Concert Choir stimulated community-wide interest in group singing. The choir presented an assembly at Westover Hills Elementary School to introduce the seventh graders to the music program at George Wythe. The Chantones, an organization composed of four choir members, performed for both civic and church organizations in the community.

In Thanksgiving and Christmas assemblies, the chorus enlightened the student body through hymns and carols. The work of the first semester was climaxed as three area high schools combined choruses to present the "Messiah."

After the Christmas presentations, the choir turned its attention to preparation for the Spring Concert. In March, Regional Chorus was held at Richmond Professional Institute. The annual competition attracted several talented Chancellors. As the final presentation of the year, the choir performed at baccalaureate services and graduation exercises.

Orchestra

Area Competition Brings Regional Musical Talent

Extending the hand of friendship and service, members of the Concert Band and the Cadet Band offered their talents to the success of the Central All-Regional Band. Chancellor musicians played an essential role in this area-wide project. The regional competition was composed of two sessions. The first consisted of auditions by six hundred students. After the judging and elimination, especially talented students were chosen to perform at the second and final assemblage. As host school, George Wythe was responsible for housing representatives from forty-nine Virginia high schools.

During the fall, the Virginia State String Orchestra, held in Portsmith, Virginia, presented an opportunity for members of the strings section to display their talents.

After mid-semester exams, enthusiasm marked preparation as the Concert Band, Orchestra, and Cadet Band concentrated their efforts on the Spring Concerts.

Cadet Corps

Staff Creates Disciplined Cadets Through Training

"To awaken in the student an appreciation of his obligations as a citizen of the United States of America" was the primary goal of the George Wythe Corps of Cadets, as expressed in its first mission. This end was reached through various classes in leadership and United States military history in which patriotism, as well as personal honor and moral uprightness, was stressed.

Another area of the Corps' leadership training program, which was greatly emphasized by its Commandant, Lt. Col. James W. Norwood, was the over-all academic standing of each individual cadet. As a result of this increased stress on the scholastic facet of cadet life, the Corps' academic average improved noticeably.

By graduation, the cadet had been equipped, through intensive leadership training and extensive competition, to deal with the vicissitudes of life.

Giving Stalwartness Reaps Victory

Hands that give stalwartness in SPORTS gather victory. Evidences of this giving were sweat that poured from fatigued bodies, drill that synchronized strategic plays, practices that ended simultaneously with the day, skill that developed from determination and resolution. All this, and then they ran just one more lap. The return gift was made important by an intangible—caring, a facet of the Bulldog spirit. They found that the harder the conflict the more satisfying the triumph. After an easy victory, the Bulldogs smiled. After an upset or a close victory, occasionally, they cried. Always, they gained pride from playing a well-fought game. Thus the Bulldogs never lost.

Recoiling Bulldogs Catapult to Third Place

Opening the season with back-to-back shutout defeats, the future looked grim for the grappling Wythe squad. In the third outing, however, Manchester fell prey to the recoiling Bulldog assault.

With rekindled spirit, the Bulldog eleven met and tamed two more teams and tied another before trouncing Thomas Jefferson. This victory pushed the Bulldogs up into third place.

By defeating Huguenot, the mighty Bulldogs, having completed their climb to the top of the district standings, held first place in the Central District. The season-ending contest with Hermitage followed, which proved to be the most crucial clash of the season. A victory would have sewn up the title; a defeat would have yielded second or even third place. The Bulldogs fought with inspired fervor, but were outmanned and outplayed by an effective Panther attack.

Energetic Squad Labors to Obtain Needed Skills

"Let's hear those pads pop!" was an order that frequently echoed across the practice fields as Coach Paul Susce put the Bullpups through their daily practice sessions. Often these drills included scrimmages with the varsity which helped to build and perfect the skills needed by both teams.

Although hampered by their small size, the determined JV squad refused to be hindered by this deficiency. Beginning the season by using their explosive offense to score two shutout victories over Colonial Heights and John Marshall, they continued their iron defense with a 0-0 tie with Huguenot. Beset by injuries, the team was defeated by the remainder of their opponents. However, their hard work and determination won them the acclaim and admiration of their coaches. Sports-minded Chancellors who enthusiastically supported them throughout the season were rewarded.

While a determined St. Christopher halfback closes in to attempt the tackle, Waverly Jones leaps to snare a pass.

Experienced Squad Sets Finest Basketball Record

Under the watchful eye of Coach John Waters, the JV cagers toiled to achieve an outstanding season. Their record of fourteen wins and two losses, the best in the school's five year history, exemplified the determination, stamina, and hard-work that was characteristic of the entire squad.

Experience proved to be a vital asset as the starting five consisted of boys with one year of previous play on the JV squad. As guards Mike Campbell and Richard Fyne dominated the outside, Earl Nance, Bucky Barthurst, and Joey Owen controlled the offensive and defensive boards. Working together as a unit, the Bullpups scored their most decisive victories over Thomas Dale, John Marshall, and Highland Springs. Bowing only to Hermitage and to Huguenot in an exciting overtime, the JV cagers established the reputation of being top district competition.

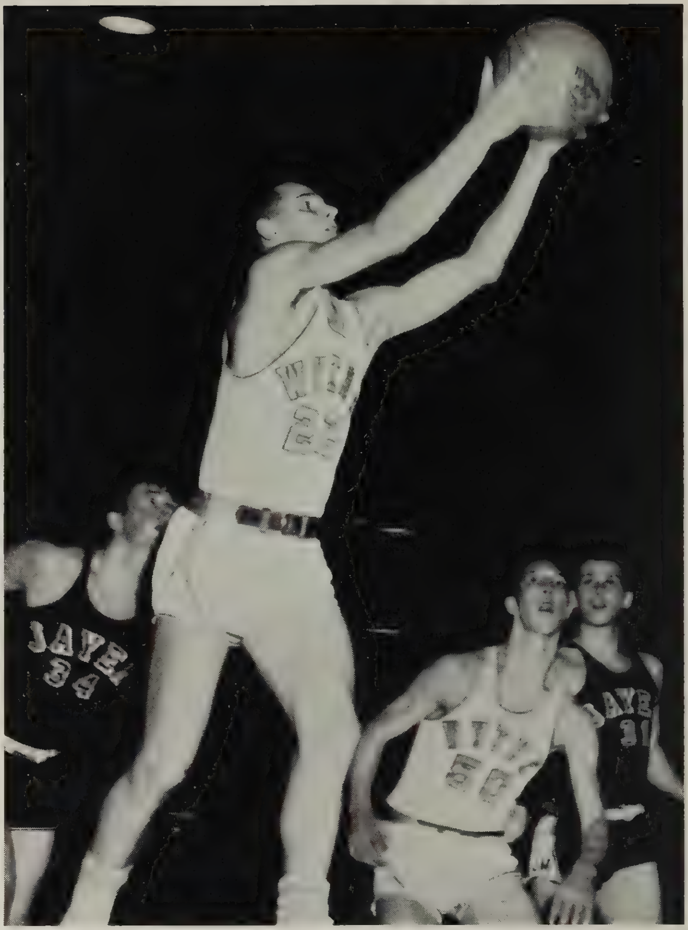
Seasoned Wythe Cagers Rate Second in Tourney

"We'll need some breaks off the backboard," remarked Coach "Bunny" Saltz at the beginning of the season. However, he also predicted, "We'll be able to move the ball well." The Bulldogs not only moved the ball well but outscrapped the tallest teams in the District.

Averaging about six feet, the starting lineup did not possess outstanding height or even a "big man." Versatility, however, made up for the lack of height on the Wythe squad. Deadly from around the key, the Wythe cagers were able to penetrate the toughest of defenses and were equally effective under the boards.

Stressing a pressing man-to-man defense, the Bulldogs bewildered team after team. They compiled an admirable regular season record and finished in a three way tie for second place.

The Bulldog cagers reached their greatest height by winning second place in the Central District Tournament and advancing to the State Tournament. Entering State I-A competition for the first time in Wythe's history, they proved themselves to be top competition, but met defeat against second seeded Maury of Norfolk.



High scorer Bobby Ukrop drives under and lifts the ball over the rim for a bucket against an inert Justice defense.

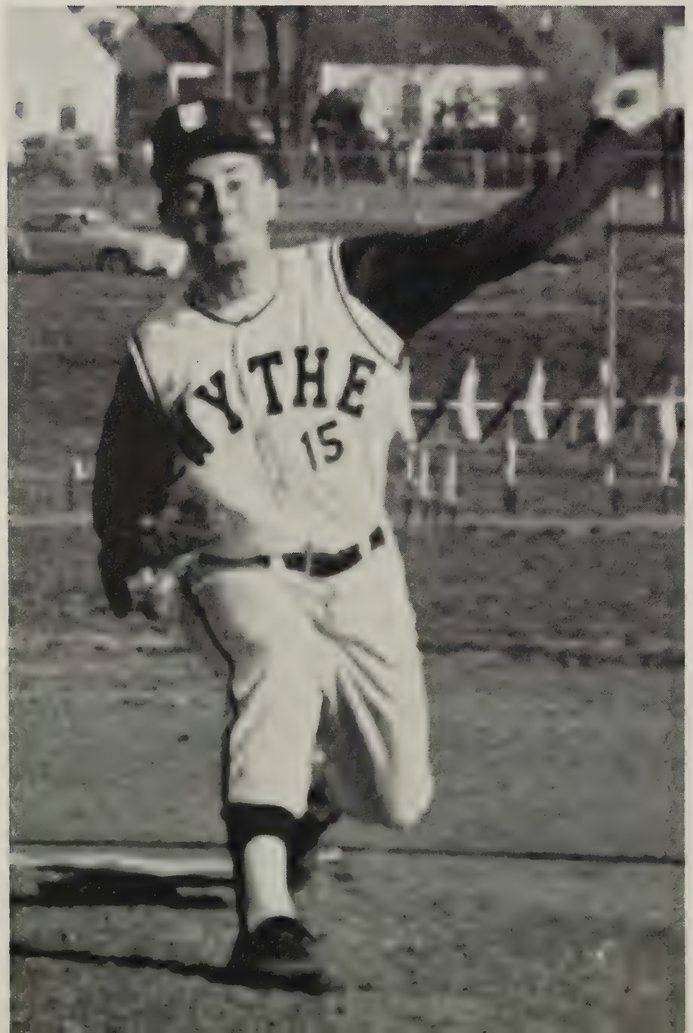
Bulldog Nine Attain Second Place in District



Boasting an 11-4 season, the Bulldog stickmen finished district play with the best record for a Wythe baseball team. Winning their first game, the Bulldogs then lost to Benedictine and Hermitage. However, the determined Bulldogs came back to defeat Thomas Jefferson 10-2. The Wythe nine lost two more before they defeated Douglas Freeman by 6-5.

Coming back from defeat, the Bulldogs beat Hermitage to start a seven game winning streak which brought them within one game of first place. This streak included the defeat of Central District Champion Highland Springs by 2-1 in extra innings.

The final game with third place Colonial Heights was to determine George Wythe's hopes for the Central District title. Falling by a score of 5-1 to the Colonial, Dennis Keller suffered his only defeat of the season, but the Bulldogs finished second in the league behind Highland Springs 13-2.

Exhibiting contortions of total exertion, pitching ace Allen Boyce pumps and fires to the plate to strike out a Rebel batter in the 3-2 win over Douglas Freeman.

Thinclads Finish Third in the District Meet

Hailed by Coach Ernsberger as a "big meet team", the Bulldog cindermen finished favorably in every major track meet and set new school records in the mile relay, the 440 and the 220 yard events.

Plagued by injuries, the Wythe trackmen finished with a 2-4 dual meet season, but made an impressive showing in the Central District and group I-A State Track meets. The Bulldogs clinched third place in the district and finished seventh in the state with Central District Champion, Douglas Freeman the only district team to top the competitive Bulldogs in the final standings.

Continually demanding respect, the Wythe distance runners were a vital asset to the team. Setting records in both the mile and the 880, Herbie Daniels was named the most valuable trackman by Central District coaches. Daniel Webster set a district record in the two mile and qualified for the state meet where he took fifth place in this event. Here, Herbie Daniels set the state mile record of 4:21.1 to mark the beginning of a new era in Wythe track. This was the first time a participant from George Wythe had placed in a state meet.

Distance Men Achieve Three CC Trophies

"1, 2, 3! Who are we? CCT . . . !" was the cry of the Wythe Cross Country Team. With a positive "winning attitude," practice, and perseverance, the distance runners achieved a fine record. In regular competition, they suffered only one loss and enjoyed seven victories under the able coaching of Messrs. Smith and Wagner.

The CCT brought George Wythe three trophies. At Douglas Freeman, they claimed the first Central District championship ever won by a Wythe team. Then, with ten teams participating, the Wythe runners placed five men in the top nine to win the Tucker Invitational Meet. In the State Meet in Williamsburg, the Bulldogs placed third.

Danny Webster, who placed third in the district and fifteenth in the state, was voted Most Valuable. In a decisive victory over Hermitage, he shaved 13.5 seconds off the record time for the Wythe course. He also claimed a new course record at the University of Richmond in a triangular meet. Helping to pace the victories were standouts Robert Willis, Jimmy Haab, Jimmy Bruce, and Central District Champion Clyde Goode.

Determined Ladies Attain Third Victorious Season

Atop Mt. Pocono in Pennsylvania, team members polished old and acquired new techniques.

Attending hockey camp in August, the Wythe shin-knockers gained skill and experience needed to produce another successful team. Combining the knowledge instilled by Mrs. Evelyn Peple and the experience gained at camp, the girls compiled their third consecutive winning season.

With the exception of the slow opening game against Hopewell, it was an active year. The girls executed wins over four rival teams and suffered only two defeats.

The Varsity Hockey Team concluded the season at the Hockey Tournament at St. Catherine's. Judges selected Suzanne Chase, Margaret Hendricks, and Susie Richards for the Tidewater team. Judy Spain, Anna Pettis, and Maryetta Payne placed on the Tidewater II team. After the selection, the teams competed in an exhibition game.

Lady Cagers Reach Top in Richmond Competition

With an initial victory over Marymount, the Lady Bulldogs entered the basketball win column. St. Catherine's was the team's second victim. However, one defeat each from St. Gertrude and Hopewell tied the record. A pair of victories followed as results of encounters with John Marshall and Petersburg. Collegiate's prowess triumphed next and a second brush with St. Gertrude scored two straight losses. Successive wins over Hopewell, Thomas Jefferson, and Collegiate boosted morale. After a gallant struggle, a loss to John Marshall by a narrow, one-point margin was recorded, and the season closed with 7 wins and 5 losses. The Area Tournament climaxed the season with the Ladies taking high scoring honors. Mackie Caviness and Pam Hudson made Team 1, Team 2 claimed Lauren Traylor, and Miss Snellings was honored as coach of Team 2.

Softball season opener against the Prince George team was won by the Ladies with a one-sided score of 25-4. This was the first victory in an eight game winning streak which highlighted the girls' play.

The team from Thomas Jefferson fell victim in two encounters as did girls from St. Catherine's. Wins over the nines from Hopewell, Huguenot and Meadowbrook rounded out the unblemished run of eight games.

A loss to Dinwiddie by the close score of 6-8 registered one of two losses. Meadowbrook eked out a victory in a return game by a margin of one run, 7-8, accounting for the other defeat.

The second game with Hopewell provided the girls with their ninth victory.

A most successful season ended with a final 9-2 record.

Under the watchful eye of Sharon Potter, Barbara Rula cuts down Meadowbrook's lead by batting in another Wythe run.

Giving Understanding Procures Friendship

Hands that give understanding in CLASSES gather friendship. Chancellors offered open minds and smiling faces. Each extended a ready hand.
They shared. In the classroom, they ventured on a common search.
Between classes, students' voices reflected relaxation and spontaneity. In the cafeteria, they alternately delved into challenging topics, laughed at senseless jokes, and sat silently as someone studied.
Chancellors sang their class songs with pride and, joining together; they sang their school song with greater pride. Giant links welded together a unified student body. Relationships built on foundations of trust and sharing became established. As Chancellors matured, friendship strengthened.

History Students Explore Varied Job Opportunities

"GW Best!" With an enthusiastic cry, the eighth graders entered the streams of academic and extracurricular activities at George Wythe. Two hundred and twenty-five students from various elementary schools in the South Richmond area converged in the expansive halls for the first time during Orientation.

United under the leadership of Kim Strong and the supervision of Mrs. Carole Brandt, the eighth graders participated in many activities ranging from supporting homeroom publication drives to contributing money for the Richmond Christmas Mother.

Incorporated with the history curriculum, a vocational program for eighth graders uncovered the various aspects of their tentatively chosen careers. Through aptitude tests administered by the history teachers, the students were exposed to the vocational field where their abilities and interest lay.

Popular sponsor of the eighth grade class, Mrs. Carole Brandt, checks the attendance cards of her homeroom students.

Freshman Class

Freshmen Rally to Unite, Strengthen Class of 1968

Freshmen rallied together in efforts to form an outstanding, united class. Throughout the year, ninth-graders initiated projects for obtaining funds for their Junior-Senior Prom and for inciting enthusiasm in athletic events. At games, they clustered together, enthusiastically supporting the Bulldogs. In April, at a class meeting, they decided to attend a track meet en masse. Freshman class leaders also encouraged participation in inter-class competition by buying publications, attending retreat parades, and entering the SCA school spirit contest.

Working co-operatively, the class of 1968 invaded Strickland's with buckets, rags, and energy for a carwash in the fall. In the fall, they also increased the treasury by sponsoring another fall activity, a sock hop at McGuire Community Center. Besides preparing themselves socially for the future extra-curricular activities, Freshmen prepared themselves academically. They strove to excel in their subjects.

Freshman class sponsor, Mrs. Jo Anne Reynolds, sits amid a mass of books preparing lessons for history class.

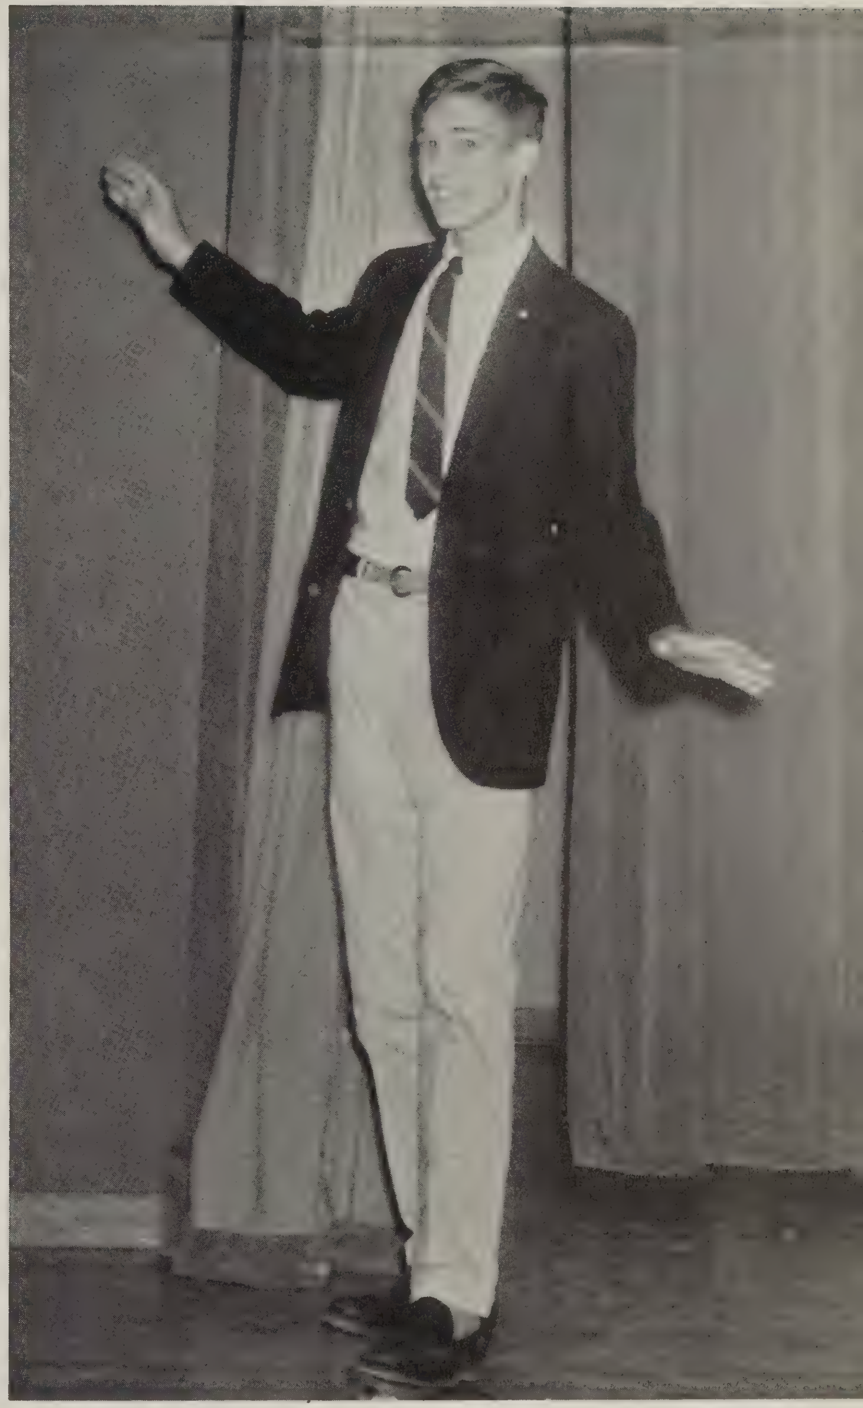
'67 Boosts Chancellor Spirit With "S.S.S."

Sparking enthusiasm throughout the entire school was the goal as the tenth grade boasted SSS. Besides the sale of George Wythe pens, a novel method of raising money for the next Junior-Senior was provided by the Sophomore Class shoe shine. All the students' shoes shined, at least for a whole day, because of this service.

Energetic tenth graders supported both the football and basketball teams by their combined presence at games during the year. As active participants, Sophomore athletes backed up the Varsity football and baseball starters and bolstered the Bulldog track and cross country teams. Other athletic tenth graders excelled on all Junior Varsity and girls' sport teams and J. V. Cheerleading.

Exhibiting enthusiasm in all facets of school life, the Class of '67 utilized the immeasurable vigor known as SSS: Sophomore School Spirit.



Living up to his campaign slogan, "Surfer Earl" Nance spends his time between assemblies trying out his skateboard.

Actively participating in the Sock Hop, Mr. Jack Wheatley, Sophomore class sponsor, does the Twist with the same enthusiasm common to the entire tenth grade.

Unique Jr.-Sr. Climaxes a Year of Varied Activity

"Juniors, Juniors, Best Class in the School," sang the spirited Class of '66 during the cheering contest at the Thomas Jefferson basketball game. The Juniors answered the Seniors' challenge with an enthusiastic response and defeated them. The Juniors yelled the cheers and filled the pauses with a spirited "supercalifragilisticexpialidocious!"

Continuing a charitable tradition, the Juniors donated to the Richmond Christmas Mother Fund with each homeroom contributing to the gift.

In preparation for the Junior-Senior, the Juniors sold doughnuts to increase the treasury. Many members concentrated their talents and efforts to produce a unique Junior-Senior.

1965 Class — First Five-Year Chancellors

For five years the Senior Class was in residence at GW. They passed through every fad from tennipumps to Superman to James Bond. Most seniors remembered the past with a thoughtful fondness. Many members could still find evidences of blue Junior-Senior paint on shoes, shirts, bermudas, and class rings. From "My Blue Heaven" the class of sixty-five went on to perform myriads of good deeds. These included a prize donated to the class with the largest number of Ledger subscriptions, buses rented for the trip to the basketball tournament at the Arena, tutoring services offered free of charge to needy seniors, and classes presented based on the use of the slide rule. In retrospect 1965 classmates recalled service and participation in many areas.

Mathematical computer and sponsor for the class of 1965, Mrs. Martha Walden straightens her file in order to provide more space for Senior notes and material.

Revealing sternness yet unending patience, Jimmy Bruce reflects his determination to carry out the unending responsibilities of president of the Senior class.

Commencement Practice, Start of Sun Tan

"Just a few more minutes of standing up here in this weather, and then we get lemonade and chicken," whispers Mr. John Schnieder to Mr. Oscar Fary.

After shedding their school clothes and weejuns, Gayle Covey, Mary Jones, Charlie Reed and Krikor Bandazian add a little flavor to their picnic by "goofing off".

Thirsty Seniors Down Gallons of Lemonade

"I really don't eat any less than you. I just eat a whole lot faster," says Diane Woodlee jokingly to Tommy Nance while Mr. Rhea Saltz concentrates.

"A quiet place, partially sunny yet a little shady, is the best place to eat Lendy's chicken and French fried potatoes," dreams a contented Chippy Coalter.

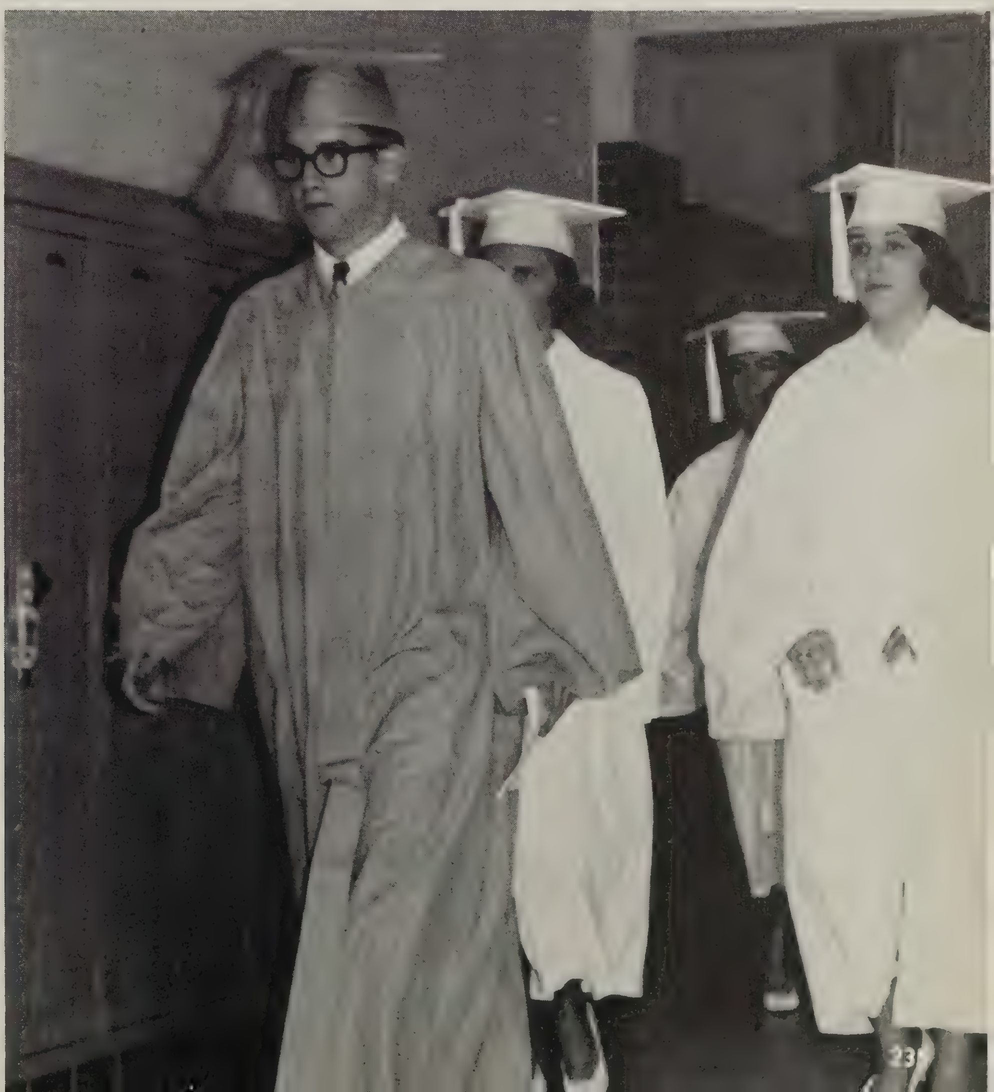
"Making a Life" Is Topic at Baccalaureate

All joking is tossed aside as Clint Creaseman, Barbara Crenshaw, Mary Crawley, and Mac Cramer march to baccalaureate.

Waiting to begin, Allen Boyce, Bob Bennett and Bill Bradshaw are concerned, while Marilyn Belate and Emile Bray relax.

With his warm and friendly smile, Reverend William Searce talks about "Making a life . . . not just living."

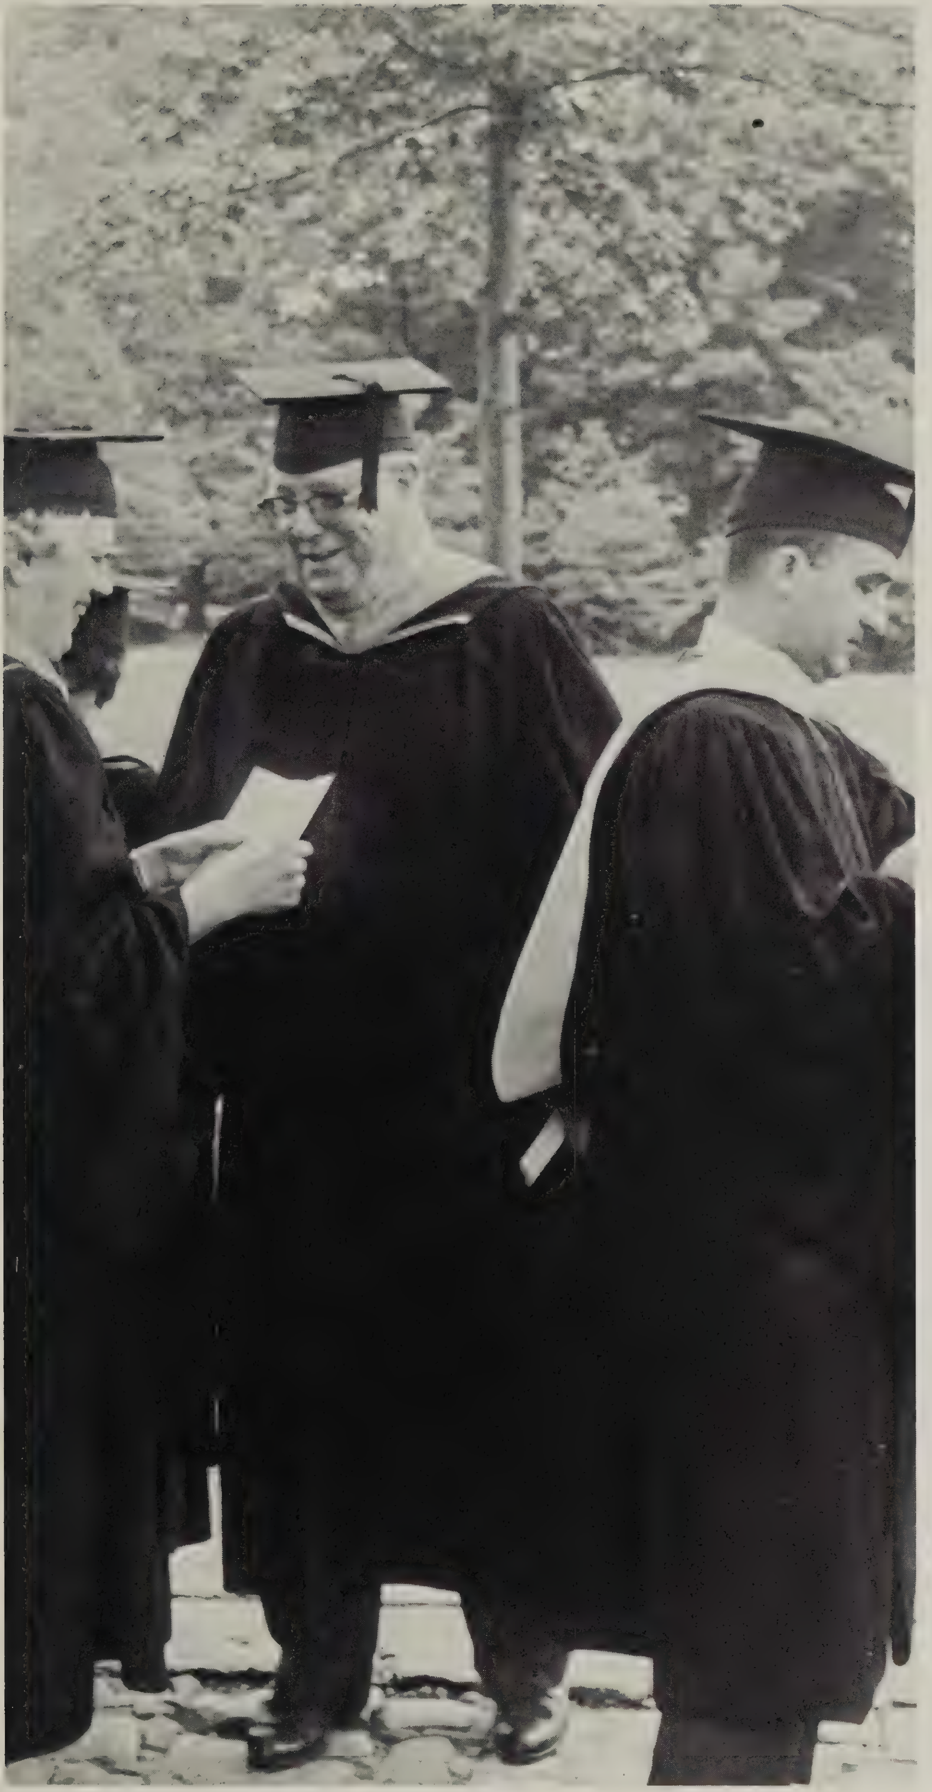
Baccalaureate is so solemn that Jim Bruce, Ann Baker, Floy Bottoms and Phyllis Blanton walk with heads erect. They have worked hard to experience this day.



Dogwood Dell Seniors Conclude, Commence

The final moment arrives, Mr. John Schnieder calls the name; Mr. Angelo Setien stands by; Mr. Oscar Fary hands diploma to smiling Bobby Bennett.

As Evelyn Dance, Herbie Daniel, Richard Dasch change their tassels from right to left, they are changing their lives from high school students to adults.



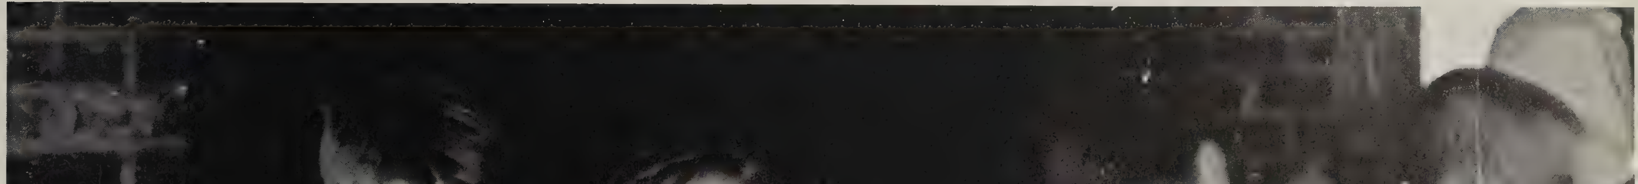
Anticipation sets the mood as Mrs. Bryant, Mr. Arnold, Mr. Setien await the start of the processional bearing principals, department heads, and graduates into Dell.

In the pleasant clime of late-spring evening, Bob Willis accepts from Mr. Fary a diploma, a firm handshake, a smile warmed with a wish for success in life.

Relaxation Is Reward of Doing Job Well

For someone who usually presents a sophisticated front, here is unrestrained fun for smiling Linda Glidewell.

To perform last duties of his office is serious business for President Jimmy Bruce who gives classmates final word.



"Presidential responsibilities were never so pleasant!" 1966 SCA President Anne Wood says while devouring a chicken leg.

Giving Patronage Earns Respect

Hands that give patronage in ADVERTISEMENTS gather respect. Chancellors supported the businesses that supplied them with the courteous service and the superior products that they required. The Chancellor voice became part of the encompassing voice of public demand, the pulse of modern mercantile methods. The heterogeneous yet deliberative and responsible body earned respect. Their tastes were recognized; their opinions were acknowledged. Enterprises sought their support, competed for their patronage. Business advertisements, appealing to the youthful customers, reflected the demands that Chancellors evidenced through their purchases. Free economy respected and responded to Chancellor demands.

Now a student life policy a father can afford!

Insurance: $10,000
Premium: $30

College is costly enough without high insurance premiums . . . yet students should be insured. The Life Insurance Company of Virginia now offers a way to give students ten thousand dollar coverage, for only thirty dollars a year, with no medical examination. Both full-time college students up to age 27 and high-school seniors who will be in college within six months are eligible. And the insured may convert to permanent insurance at any time the Student Life Plan is in force, without evidence of insurability.

Call a Life of Virginia representative today.

Giving . . .
Ending . . .

Chancellors give of themselves and are rewarded with greater gifts.
We receive priceless intangibles. In the Chancellor spirit of giving,
we forget ourselves, but,
having given of ourselves
we will not be forgotten . . .
